Brooklyn post-punk trio Fan-tan began in 2007 when Ryan Lee and Sandee K moved from Chapel Hill to Brooklyn. After four years of touring and recording, they met drummer Mike Sherburn while on the road to SXSW, and the band was complete.

The group has become known for their intense live performances, melding guitar noise with icy rhythm, haloed by sharp, lilting vocal melodies. Their sound recalls a more rigid My Bloody Valentine or a less rigid Gang of Four. A more dramatic Jesus and Mary Chain. A kinder Suicide.

Fan-tan's debut LP, A Strange Game, is slated for release in spring 2013 on Goodnight Records, with a national tour to follow.

PRESS QUOTES:

"For additional post-punk brilliance, cross your fingers that springtime—and therefore, A Strange Game—arrives quickly. We will too." -- Filter Magazine

"Most of the influences cited in Fan-Tan's press materials date back to the '70s and '80s (including My Bloody Valentine, Gang of Four, Suicide, and the Jesus and Mary Chain), so it's only natural that the Brooklyn-based band's video for "Window" showcases some special effects that look charmingly retro." -- Exclaim Mag

"All I could think was, wow these cats are well oiled and rehearsed. Window is the second single off A Strange Game by Goodnight Records to be released in late January 2013. I want this album!"

-- Bushwick Daily
